Special Police Teams Formed

►► From Page 1

This was preceded by widely circulated videos on WhatsApp warning people about kidnappers being on the prowl in the city. Police arrested 25 people including four women and a minor in connection with the case. Incidents of lynching have also been reported across Assam, Telangana, Tamil Nadu and Kerala, where fake news and videos about suspected child abductors distributed on WhatsApp caused alarm among villagers.

In Assam, over a dozen people have been arrested after a mob lynched two youngsters last week suspecting them to be child kidnappers.

'We are monitoring social media and have chalked out counter strategies to ensure fake messages are not spread. The department also interacts with the public constantly," DS Chauhan, Additional Commissioner of Police (Law and Order), Hyderabad City, told ET.

It's difficult to trace who started the rumours," he said. In response to ET's queries, a WhatsApp spokesperson said, "The privacy and security of our users is very important to WhatsApp. We've made it easy to block any phone number or report spam and we encourage people to report problematic messages so that we can take action. We're also stepping up our education efforts so that people know about our safety features, as well as how to spot fake news

Cyber security analysts are divided on whether more can be done by platforms to counter fake news threat

In Telangana and Assam, special police teams have been formed to monitor social media and to track fake messages and prepare a counter response or hoaxes on WhatsApp."

"In a week we get at least three calls of WhatsApp rumours causing unrest in various loca-tions", said an officer from the cybercrime branch of the Kerala Police

"We have given people directions to start counter propaganda, and we're assisting them in dispelling the rumour. We try to identify the administrator of the (WhatsApp) group that is used to spread rumours." said the officer. He said WhatsApp has, so far, not cooperated with the police on these efforts.

ANALYSTS DEVIDED

Cyber security analysts are divided on whether more can be done by social media platforms to counter the rising threat of fake news on these platforms.

"This is clearly a case of a platform like What-sApp (owned by Facebook) not doing enough. Just because WhatsApp is end-to-end encrypted it does not mean their hands are tied," said Pranesh Prakash, a fellow at the Centre for Internet and Society, a policy advocacy group.

The WhatsApp application is linked to a mobile number, the platform has access to trace the indivi-dual who spread rumours," said Prakash.

Badal to Meet DIPP Officials Again to Clear 'Roadblocks'

Amazon declined to comment on Badal's initiatives.

Badal, the advocate and architect of India's food-only retailing policy, is pushing the largest investment in the sector, which other global giants have spurned. The minister said she will meet DIPP officials again in a bid to clear other 'roadblocks" for Amazon.

Amazon has invested billions of dollars in infrastructure such as warehouses, logistics and transportation for its online marketplace in India and not being able to use these resources for the food retailing venture would only make the business known for its wafer-thin margins more difficult, said a person familiar with the matter.

Amazon had committed investing $5 billion in India in 2016 and a recent report said it would put in an additional $2 billion after Walmart acquired control of local online rival Flipkart.

Analysts said Badal is trying to salvage a showcase invest ment proposal of the 2016 policy allowing 100% foreign ownership in retail ventures that sell food products directly to consumers — both online and offline - provided they are sourced and packaged within the country.

Amazon was the only global giant to apply through this route. Others including Walmart said food-only ventures by themselves didn't make sense and the government must allow them to stock a portion of non-food items to make the business viable.

- However, Amazon's plans hit a snag after the government asked it to keep the food retailing venture separate from the online marketplace business Amazon has asked the DIPP whether it can share some of the warehouse staff, entry and exit doors at warehouses, barcode machines, trollies, pallets and other logistical paraphernalia for its food-only ven-
- ture with the existing infrastructure of Amazon.in The Seattle-based retailer also wants to know if it can
- maintain the "segregation" virtually'

Badal said the DIPP has asked Amazon not to use the marketplace transportation and distribution network for its food retail business and said she would talk to DIPP to get the issue "sorted"

Amazon Retail India Pvt, the wholly owned food venture of the US company, has been running a pilot in Pune. However, sources said the operation is merely an extension of Amazon India's online grocery retail initiatives. with the only difference being bills issued in the name of Amazon Retail India.
